

Dean's Undergraduate Research Prize
Nomination Form 2006

Student's name: _____
(Please note that only juniors and seniors may be nominated.)

Student ID Number: _____

Student's mailing address: _____

Department/Program: _____

Title of Research Project: _____

Please note that this award is intended to recognize original, significant research conducted by undergraduates with the guidance of our faculty. In addition, you should keep in mind that not all members of the award committee may be familiar with terminology or subjects particular to your discipline. Avoid jargon and technical terms and provide enough detail about the project so that people outside your discipline can appreciate what the work entailed.

In order to be eligible for consideration, a student must have made substantial progress on her or his research project at the time of nomination; there must be a clear expectation on the part of the faculty advisor that the project will be completed.

Was this project conducted independently or in collaboration with a faculty member or other students? Explain the student's role in the progress and success of this project.

If other researchers were involved, list them here and explain their work in relation to that of the student nominated:

Briefly describe the nature of the student's research and the product that resulted. If the project was collaborative, describe the student's individual contribution. In addition, explain the methodology employed by the student.

Please explain the significance of this student's research--what makes it outstanding? Again, bear in mind that the selection committee is drawn from multiple disciplines; thus, you should be sure to explain the research project in a way that an informed general audience could understand.

Has this work been (or will it be) published in a journal, presented at a conference, or otherwise made available to an audience outside of a class or lab (e.g. as part of a Web-based presentation)? Is this work of publishable quality? Please note that while such activity is not required for the award, such information is helpful to the committee in its decision-making process.

Is there any other information about this project that would be helpful to the committee in making its decision?
